It's tough to get the right loan.

"You can tell they really know this process...
that means I know
I'm getting the best loan for me."

IPI introduces our One Step construction loan. Great rates. Zero points. Single closing.

At IPI, we understand just how difficult it can be to buy land and to build your dream house. Typically, you'd start with a short-term land loan, then go to a construction loan and finally an "end loan" or conventional mortgage. And typically, you'd pay points or fees every step of the way. Not to mention the aggravation of separate closings.

Not anymore. IPI is proud to announce our One Step construction loan. It's the only zero-point, single-closing land/construction/end loan available that is underwritten entirely on site in our Main Street, Bridgehampton office. This comprehensive program offers you a single interest rate for all three phases of your project, from beginning to end. And most important, IPI locks in your interest rate—in advance, at no additional cost—for 12 months, not for 60 days like other brokers or banks.

We can offer innovative programs like our One Step construction loan because we've consolidated our loan officers, processors, underwriters and closers under one roof. Our experienced mortgage professionals represent more than 100 preferred lenders, so we can find the best possible program at the best possible price for you. And because IPI is the largest mortgage broker in the Northeast, you get the best of two worlds: New York big and Hamptons local.

A Cut Here And A Snip There And The Cost Drops From $8 Million To $2 Million

By Dan Rattiner

We are standing next to a NEW CONCEPT REAL ESTATE sign on the front lawn of a large home in East Hampton. New Concept is a brand new firm with, well, a new concept.

"What do you see?" Janet Wilson, the President of New Concept asks.

"I see," I said, "a big mansion with a wrap around porch, a tennis court and a swimming pool on what looks like three acres."

"Close. It's three point two acres."

"So what's the New Concept?"

"This house is listed for six million dollars. Few people can afford a six million dollar house. Yet someone might buy it if we could sell it to them for three million dollars. There are more people who can afford three million dollars."

"That's true."

"So we have permission to sell the house for three million dollars, but without the swimming pool, the tennis court and the wrap around porch."

"How do you do that?"

"I have a friend with a bulldozer. He comes in. No tennis court, no swimming pool, no wrap

"How about just the wrap around porch?"

"Three million nine."

"And the town will let you do this?"

"The town loves the idea. It's kind of an upzoning, only it's in the category of if you can't raise the bridge lower the water. You wind up with a lower density of building on the property."

"What if my budget is only nine hundred thousand?"

"It's a stretch, but we can do that too. You lose the swimming pool, the tennis court, the wrap around porch, the wing housing the garage and the guest apartment on the second floor and four fireplaces."

"To judge by the chimneys, there are five fireplaces."

"We have to leave you with SOMETHING. Nine hundred thousand dollars is a lot of money. Or around porch."

"What if I want the wrap around porch and the swimming pool?"

"Four million nine."

South O' the Highway (and North, too)

Martha Stewart has bought a house in Bedford. No, she's not moving there, she still owns the house in Connecticut and two in East Hampton, both on Lilly Pond Lane, she just likes fixing them up. Meanwhile, in Manhattan, Martha threw a party at Daniel's for her medical inventor friend, Dr. Sam Waksal whose start-up firm, Imclome, Martha touted to Carl Ichan and his wife Gail, Andre Farkas, Keith Barish and Debbie Grubman over the last few years. They bought shares in the company which originally sold at ten dollars now go at $140 and they came to lift a glass. This gal Martha may have a good future in front of her.

Congratulations to Robin Duke of Southampton who has just been named our new Ambassador to Norway.

Billy Joel may be leaving the Hamptons but he's left some of his heart here. Last week he was in Washington appealing to Congress to allot thirty million dollars to help area lobster men weather the hard times of the past season when so many lobsters died and further study the problem.

Wilbur L. Ross, Jr. of Southampton, the prominent investment banker, is leaving Rothschild, Inc. at the end of the month and will open his own investment firm, W.L. Ross & Co. He will have offices in New York, Tokyo and Seoul, South Korea and will take a majority position in several Recovery Funds that have about $450 million in assets. About twenty Rothschild employees who work in the Funds will join his new firm.

Get well to Alan Alda. We hope you have a speedy recovery.

Congrats to Hamptonite Billy Baldwin and wife Chynna Phillips on the birth of their son.

The stunning Padma Lakshmi might be a new addition to the Hamptons if she continues to spend time with author Salman Rushdie who's a fre-

Last week photographer Barry Gordin went to the star studded premiere of Madonna's new film The Next Best Thing directed by Academy Award winner John Schlesinger and co-starring Rupert Everett as her gay best friend. Mr. Gordin's photograph should have been headlined "Madonna's Next Best Thing," but were erroneously titled. Dan's Papers would like to extend a sincere apology to Barry Gordin, Guy Ritchie, Madonna, her publicist and all her friends at the premiere. Oceanfront (Continued from page 11) at least it used to be a lot of money. In East Hampton it isn't."

"No it isn't."

"We have nine million dollar houses we can reduce to six. We have fourteen million dollar oceanfront houses we can reduce to eleven."

"Not by removing the ocean."

"No, by removing the sand. We pump the sand off the beach."

"This is very hard to believe. You actually pump the sand off the beach?"

"If people don't want to pay for it, they don't get it."

"And how many of your homes have these options, where you can pay less to get less?"

"All of them."

"Can you add things and charge more?"

"No. Everything is designed to make the properties LESS valuable. We show them at their maximum value. And the towns love us. Because we lop things off. Well, almost always. We do have an oceanfront situation where we make the house less valuable by bringing in large boulders for the beach. The result is there's no place to sit on. The beach is less valuable. But that's a singular case."

"So everything can be sold for less and less."

"That's why we call ourselves New Concept. We're not like any other real estate firm. Totally unique."

"I guess so."

"All the other firms are old hat. In fact, in the New Concept office we refer to them in that way. We've got a new client coming over from Old Hat Realty we might say. Sort of a shorthand. Could mean any other real estate office."

"You are also on the internet, somebody told me."

"Absolutely. NewConceptRealEstate.com. You go to a particular listing, look at the photograph of the house, click on the part of the house you want removed, and the price comes down. When the deal's made, we call in the guy with the bulldozer."

"What's the least expensive thing you have?"

"We have a six point three million dollar house you can get for one hundred seventy thousand."

"That's quite a discount."

"It starts out as a nine acre parcel with a fifteen bedroom house, four bathrooms, servant's quarters, gymnasium in the basement, greenhouse, hot tub, swimming pool, nature trail, boat dock and forty-one foot ChrisCraft. It ends up as a studio, with a kitchen and bath at one end and a fold down bed at the other. It also comes with a large, awful, modern house built on the front lawn blocking the view of the harbor - we arrange a subdivision of the land - owned now by a loud and nasty funeral home director who holds heavy metal parties on the rooftop until dawn. And you're not invited."

"Sounds brutal."

"Well, what do you expect for a hundred seventy thou?"

Q: WHO HAS MORE 24-HOUR PATROL CARS ON THE ROAD THAN ALL OTHER SECURITY COMPANIES COMBINED?

Recently one of our competitors announced 24-hour guard patrol. What they didn't tell you is that they have just one car. Scan with its fleet has more cars than all other companies combined. And that's easy because the rest of our competitors don't even have one car. So, with Scan if there are two fires, three break-ins, and a few low temps, you're not out of luck...one of our cars will get the call.

Dan's Papers "They Made The Movie Here" Film Festival

(featuring films that either takes place in the Hamptons or were filmed here)

March 18th ~ Last Summer In The Hamptons

Three generations of a family of inflated egos and talent come to their summer home for what will be their final meeting. For icon Vivica Lindfors, it was to be her last film appearance.

March 25th ~ Death Trap

Michael Caine and Christopher Reeve star in a now-you-see-it-now-you-don't cat and mouse game that's as playful as a devastatingly sharp battle-axe. It was directed by Sidney Lumet.

April 1st ~ Rocket Gibraltar

An ailing father entertains his large family in his Sagaponack house for his 77th birthday celebration. Wonderfully heart-warming barely describes this film and Burt Lancaster's sensitive performance.

April 8th ~ Annie Hall

The epitome of Woody Allen at his very best. It won four Oscars, including Best Picture. Hilarious and thoughtfully melancholy at times... no one can resist this movie- or should.

April 15th ~ David And Lisa

The gentle exploration of a mentally disturbed young couple, groping for places in the world- remains one of the best films on the subject. Performances by the lead couple are marvelous.

April 22nd ~ Last Summer

Exceptionally strong story of the trials of teenagers playing out explosive games of sexual awakening and status on local beaches. Provocative and jarring, its original X rating has been edited for an R.

April 29th ~ Masquerade

A taunting romantic suspense thriller of an ambiguous young man's ambitions and the wealthy wife he might have married for her dowry. Beautiful people and likewise beautiful, close-by locations, highlight the dark plot.

May 6th ~ The Fan

Lauren Bacall stars as a Broadway star stalked by a psychotic admirer. Also featured is James Garner. Be cautioned! This is a tough, exploitive shocker.. not for the faint of heart.

May 13th ~ The Dain Curse

Fittingly adapted from an early Dashielle Hammett novel, this well produced, film version is crammed full with the smoking-gun intrigue of The Maltese Falcon author.

May 20th ~ Grey Gardens

This somewhat shocking documentary actually remains compellingly poetic and touching. It captures a small portion of the later years of Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter, Edie (aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Onassis), filmed in their decaying, over grown mansion in East Hampton. Once seen, Edith and Edie, will not soon leave you.

Featherbed Blowout

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major department stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also known as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

War Memorial

How A Fake Village In Montauk Can Be A Tribute To WWII And The Cold War

By Dan Rattiner

Five years ago I was in New Zealand and in traveling about the country, stumbled upon a group of buildings the government was restoring as an integral part of that country's history. The buildings were located on the outskirts of a 150 year old former gold mining town that had been restored as a tourist destination. There was one main street filled with art studios, clothing stores, restaurants, a restored sheriff's office, a saloon and so forth.

There was nothing touristy about all these buildings off in the woods out of town, however. A sign led you to them. Collectively they were called the Chinese Camp and they consisted of makeshift homes and the single store that served the Chinese workers who had been brought to New Zealand 150 years ago as laborers for the Gold Rush.

You could walk in and out of some of these camp buildings. They were little more than hovels. The store, which at that time was empty, would soon be restocked with the sorts of things that were sold back then to the laborers.

I've never forgotten my trip to the Chinese Camp. And it has come to mind as I think about a particular part of eastern Long Island, now owned by the state of New York that is deep in the woods, oceanfront, next to the Montauk Point Lighthouse. It is a fake village almost like a movie set, complete with a church, bowling alley, homes and so forth and it was designed to fool the Germans during WWII. In reality, during that time, it was an army being fired during test operations. The ground shook throughout Montauk at such times. Nearby, there were several anti-aircraft batteries. The remains of them are in sight of the lighthouse today and there are also underground tunnels and bunkers for ammunition and defense that extend for several hundred yards. They are still there, still in place, but no one is allowed in them.

The false village, the guns and the tunnels sit on over 400 acres of land that include almost half a mile of oceanfront with some of the wildest scenery imaginable. Great cliffs, seventy and eighty feet high, line the shore – which was why the installation was put there in the first place – and they create a formidable barrier to any amphibious landing attempt.

Some of the false village was burned in an exercise by the Montauk Fire Department in the 1970s and some of the rest of it has already collapsed into ruin – but much of it remains. It served as an important part of our history, an outpost that was a first line defending freedom against tyranny, not only during the Second World War but during the Cold War against the Soviet Union that followed.

base, but if you flew over it in a bomber you would never know that. You'd pass it up. It was just a peaceful place where fishermen lived.

During that era, the military built many facilities in Montauk. There were two huge shore batteries, containing the sort of guns you would see on the battleship Missouri, built into the hill and shaded by concrete hoods ready to fire enormous shells into the Atlantic to repel an advancing naval fleet.

As a boy in the 1950s, I remember those guns

This piece of property back then was in federal hands of course. But in 1984 the state of New York took it over in a land swap so the federal government could extend some parkland elsewhere in Montauk that was under state jurisdiction.

Since 1984, nothing has been done with this parcel. There had been a proposal that it all be torn down and turned into a golf course, rejected out of hand by the public, since it would cease to be available to fishermen, naturalists and hikers. There has been a plan to build cabins on the site that could be rented by backpackers. But it has brought much opposition as well, though it remains on the table for further consideration. State Park Commissioner, Bernadette Castro has become frustrated as to what to do.

"My mission is to give the public access to what they own," Ms. Castro told The New York Times. "I do not want to keep posting DO NOT ENTER signs there. It is not fair to the people."

All this is just a mile away from the Montauk Lighthouse, which is now owned and supervised by the Montauk Historical Society. Here, on the Lighthouse lawn, there is a huge statue to honor those fishermen who have been lost at sea while trying to earn a living for their families. The statue has been designed and built by sculpture Malcolm Frazier, it was dedicated just last year and sits be a moving war memorial to the soldiers, sailors and airmen who gave their lives and it would be unlike any other war memorial that I know.

In case anyone thinks there might be hordes of people overrunning this place, it should be noted that the village is one mile along a dirt path from the lighthouse. It could be the turning around point of a long nature walk, the start of which could be at the lighthouse itself. Included in the tour would be not only the village but also the big gun installations and the tunnels beneath the anti-aircraft batteries. Also included might be the early warning system radar station that was built during the Korean War to serve during that conflict and subsequent Cold War confrontations. I do not propose that the big guns ever be refired.

This past month the attention of the world was focused back on New Zealand, where the America's Cup yacht race were held in Auckland Harbor. There were three American entries: Stars and Stripes, America One and Young America and, as defenders of the Cup, the New Zealanders, happy to oblige.

As this races unfolded on my TV screen, I was reminded of the Chinese Camp and thought of what might be here at the tip of Long Island near the Lost at Sea Memorial and the Montauk Lighthouse, ordered built by George Washington. •

Tangled Web TV

All You Do Is Plug It In, Turn It On, Buy An Adapter, A Keyboard, A Remote, Type In A Code...

By Dan Rattiner

I've been trying for some time now to persuade my mother in Florida to get a Web TV. She says that it's too complicated, that she's never been able to figure out computers. And I tell her, this isn't complicated at all, you just buy it, plug it in and use it. She says, "I doubt it. Don't buy it, I can get along without it."

Last week though, I was down there for a visit and she mentioned that her friend Janet has a Web TV and she loves it, but she still thinks it's not for her, that it's too complicated.

"Mom, is Janet smarter than you?" I asked.

"No," she said.

"Well then, let me get one for you," I said.

We went down to Office Depot and my mother warned the salesman that if it was anything complicated, she'd have to bring it back. "I don't know much about computers," she said.

"For any reason at all, you can return the product," the salesman said. "We have a very liberal return policy."

He then asked us to watch a video about the Web TV, which played on a television screen like a Web TV does, but wasn't actually from the Web TV machine. It consisted of half a dozen people, mostly very dumb looking women saying things like, "I can't believe it, I just plugged it in and was right on the Internet." Or, "It's so easy, in ten minutes I was trading stocks online and I made a fortune," or, "I had no idea there was nothing to learn, now I'm surfing the internet."

"Yes," a dumb male voice said. "You just plug it in, follow the simple instructions, and you're online. No big complicated thing like with a whole computer. And you save money too."

Indeed, the Web TV on display was only $199. "We'll take it," I said.

The salesman disappeared into the stock room and came back long faced. "We're out of stock today," he said.

"Well, I'm leaving on a plane tonight," I said. "This is the last day I'm in Fort Lauderdale, I need to hook it up for her."

"Let me see what I can do," the salesman said. He went back in the stock room and reappeared with a Web TV. "This one's only $99," he said.

"What doesn't it do?" I asked.

"It's an older model," he said. "It doesn't have a cache, so you can't store favorite sites."

"This is looking complicated," my mother said.

"Any problem you have, any problem at all," the salesman said, "just call here and someone will help you out, but believe me, you just plug it in and off you go."

"And this has absolutely everything you need inside?" I asked.

"Yes," he said.

"Batteries included?"

"Yes, even batteries included."

We went to checkout and it was $99.95 for everything but that didn't include the keyboard. "You have to have a keyboard if you want to type in e-mail that you would send out, wouldn't you?"

the salesman asked who accompanied us.

"Yes, I suppose so," I said.

"Well, the keyboard is $49.95," he said.

We got this whole rig home, I set the Web TV on top of the TV set, got the cable out that would adapter anywhere. No mention of one, not even a place for one in the packaging, I called back.

"Well come on down," the salesman said. "We'll fix you up."

"I thought you said everything was included?" I said.

"Well, not if you need an RC adapter," he said.

I drove the four miles back to Office Depot, only to find that my salesman was on break and that all the other salesmen said that they don't sell RC adapters at Office Depot, you have to get them at Radio Shack. My salesman came back.

"Oh, I thought we did sell them," he said.

I tried to make eye contact with this man, but failed. One of the other salesman then directed me to a Radio Shack, which it turned out was about 400 yards from my mother's apartment. I could have walked there. So, I went to Radio Shack and for thirty bucks, bought an RC switch and for another seven an RC cable, brought them back to my mother's house and installed the RC adapter between the Web TV cable and the TV.

Now, I put in the fresh batteries, which did come with the Web TV, and, sitting three feet away, pressed the button on the keyboard that turned on the Web TV. A light came on on the Web TV, but nothing happened on the TV screen except a lot of snow. Now I read the instructions about getting the keyboard to turn on and off the TV set.

"Find the name of your TV set on the back or the side and then look up the code number in the box next to this message," the manual read. "You enter this code just like you enter a code to activate a TV remote. On the keyboard, press the enter code button, then enter the code that's next to the name of your TV, press enter and then test it by pressing the TV button on the keyboard an and off, and it should turn your TV on and off."

There were six different codes next to the name Emerson TV, which was what I found on the front of the TV set, upon which the Web TV sat. The first code was 103; I entered that, tested it by pressing the TV off/on button, and found it didn't work. I then, one at a time, entered all the other codes for Emerson and none of them worked either.

My mother wandered in from the Florida room, where she had been reading the afternoon paper. "How much longer till you plug it in?" she asked.

"I'm working on it," I said. She left.

I called Office Depot again, I was no longer interested in talking to my original salesman but another salesman told me that there was never any intention for the keyboard to operate the TV set. It was just supposed to operate the Web TV.

"It's here in black in white," I told him. "Admiral,

"So, I called Sony. Keep in mind that on each of these calls I had to wade through a maze of mechanical voices..."

connect the Web TV to the TV and attached it, or at least I tried to attach it. On the Web TV side the cable branched out into three plugs and there were three plugs there you could plug it into. On our TV side it branched out into three plugs but there was only one place to plug something into. I called Office Depot.

"Yeah," the salesman said. "If your TV only has one place to plug in to, you need an RC adapter."

I hung up the phone and looked through everything I had brought home. There was no RC

General Electric, RCA, Sony, none of these names have any thing to do with the Web TV, yet you have to program them."

He continued to insist that I didn't have to do this. Finally, he said, "Call Web TV, let them walk you through it."

So, I called Web TV and they told me they only could give me advice on the Internet and the software and the link between the Web TV and the satellite. If I needed to talk about the hardware hook-up, I should call Sony the company who manufactured the keyboard. So, I called Sony. Keep in mind that on each of these calls I had to wade through a maze of mechanical voices that said,

"Press one if you need this, press two if you need that." And lots of elevator music.

Sony gave me the startling news that the Web TV keyboard was not guaranteed to operate with every TV set. "But it lists all the other TV's there and it's various codes," the lady from Sony said. "Try all those codes."

I looked, all together there must have been fifty different three-digit codes, and it would take half an hour. "Also," she said, "the RC cable from Radio Shack won't work, the only one that works is the Sony RC cable, you'll have to find one of those. You'll have to find a dealer that sells that."

"I can't get it from you?" I asked.

"No, we're only the service department," she said. "We don't sell them directly."

At this point my mother came in to inquire again how long it would be before I got it plugged in. "We're taking everything back," I said.

At Office Depot, after assuring us that there would be no questions asked as to why we had to return something and that they had a very liberal return policy, the woman at the register, to whom I had given the Web TV, said, "What's wrong with it? What's the problem?" She had a very aggressive tone of voice.

My mother glared at her. "My son said it's too complicated," she said.

Downtown Havana

The Cuba Movie

The Cubans Just Got Out Of Theirs, We Americans Are Just Getting Out Of Ours

By Dan Rattiner

This is the third article that I'm writing about Cuba, which I visited last month along with eight other members of a group called Fundacion Amistad. No, it is not possible to just get on an airplane and land at the Havana Airport. There has been an embargo in place for almost forty years against this still quaintly communist country. You can only go if you are a member of a fully licensed cultural exchange organization. Increasingly, there are more of these licenses being offered up here in the United States, and so more and more people are going. Now you can even go using just a press pass, which is sort of a badge of cultural exchange, but it's still not easy.

I had many adventures in Cuba, which I've written about in the last two weeks and almost everywhere I go, people ask about the experience. And so, I've taken to offering a summary of the visit.

Cuba is in a time warp. Before 1959, Havana was a thriving, prosperous metropolis, richer in history and architecture than any other city in the Caribbean. Now over forty years later, you can go back and just about everything that was there in the late '50s is exactly where everybody left it. It's just never been cleaned or repainted or been used in just about any way other than it was intended to be used. It's like, for an American, going to a place where everybody has died, and it's forty years later and all the buildings are standing. It's the strangest thing imaginable and it's exactly like some crazy movie.

Luly Duke (with bag) and friends

For the Cubans there is another movie, which just about all of them, everyday, seem to be reliving and that is the ringing success and triumph of communism over facism, of the defeat of a brutal dictator and the triumphant march into the city of the glamorous revolutionary Fidel. Cubans will happily relive the scenes in this movie and will do so at the slightest opportunity.

Unlike the Russians who suffered economic hardship through the 1980's with a grim anger, the Cubans are almost laughing off the hardships of the '90s with music, food, families, conversation and children. They shrug off their hardship; they've got the sun in the morning and the moon at night and Uncle Fidel is out on the street somewhere – no he doesn't live in the palace – he works in an office just like the rest of us.

The only thing missing from the picture is any kind of intellectual, political discourse. One is struck by the complete absence of daily newspapers to read. There are no opinions, editorials, controversies and nuances to be discussed and rediscussed; only trouble lies in that direction. A united front of people standing shoulder to shoulder is a necessity when standing up to a power such as the United States, or so goes the party line.

The leaders of Cuba haven't quite gotten that the cold war is over and it's OK.

The exchange mission that I was part of was led by Luly Duke, the wife of Tony Duke of Boys Harbor, East Hampton. Luly is Cuban born and raised and her well-to-do parents fled Havana when she was fourteen years old. In one sense, the group that she heads up, Fundacion Amistad is, for her, a nostalgic return to her childhood. In another sense it is a remarkable attempt to keep person to person friendships alive – and I'm not talking about just her friendships – two generations after the revolution, so that the chasm between Cuba and America might heal.

Luly goes to Cuba several times a year.

She is well known to the Cuban authorities, who understand and respect what she's about. But for the lower bureaucracy and for the general Cuban public, her manners and accent often give her away as being part of the wealthy family group that Fidel overthrew. Many Cubans do not like this group of former well-to-do Cubans and it's particularly exacerbated by the mess with the young boy Elian in Miami.

Luly knows this and she soldiers on. My hat is off to her.

This particular mission was an environmental education exchange. It was a group of nine. Among others it included Dr. Norman Christianson, Dean of the School of the Environment at Duke University; Mrs. Jayni Chase, founder of the Center for Environmental Education in Bedford (and the wife of Chevy Chase); Dr. Robert Wallace, the Director of the Harbor Academy of Environmental Science and the Arts in Manhattan and several others.

For much of the week, our itinerary was filled with meetings with Cuban environmental groups. We visited with the government Director for Environmental Education who sets policy for school children in Cuba. We were given a tour of a teachers college and a large garden of environmentally grown vegetables and fruits. We were taken by the Director of the National Zoo on a tour of a nature preserve, with wild animals that came up to our car and we went to a biosphere ecological station in the Sierra Del Rosario mountains. We also saw how the director and staff of the Natural History Museum puts his exhibits together and we met with the director and staff of the National Aquarium of Havana. Everywhere we went on this professional level we exchanged information, business cards, contact names and gifts. At the Antonio Nunez Jiminez Foundation For Nature and Man, Luly and several members of our group were impressed enough with a young associate there to suggest to the director that he be brought to Boys Harbor in East Hampton for a Summer Exchange. There was also some discussion by our party on how we might help some weather bureau people up in the mountains get their equipment replaced or repaired.

It was an exciting adventure, going on this trip, and I was glad I did.

Healing Through Art

Quogue Woman's Survivors Art Foundation Exhibits In Southampton This Weekend

By Jerry Cimisi

In 1996, Candyce Brokaw, a survivor of rape and incest, began writing on an internet support group. Her contact with other survivors of severe emotional trauma led her to begin a foundation in 1997 that put up a website in June, 1998. Within a year the Survivors Art Foundation was drawing artists from forty-seven states and 20 countries. This Saturday, March 18, the Foundation opens a show of work, "Women and Children of the New Millennium," at the Cultural Center in Southampton.

The foundation is wholly nonprofit and tries to help individuals who have suffered from the cruelties of life, whether sexual abuse, war or disease. It was only last March that the foundation had its first show, also at the Cultural Center. Since then it has exhibited in Philadelphia, Huntington, Hofstra, and, last December, at the United Nations.

One of the works the Survivors Art Foundation presented at the UN was a nine-foot mosaic, created over the course of a year by children who are hearing or visually impaired or who are mentally challenged.

This past summer Ms. Brokaw and Marietta Dantonio, the Outreach Project Coordinator of the foundation, went to Fort Dix to work with Kosovo refugees who had streamed in America because of the war in their homeland during the spring.

Ms. Brokaw said, "Marietta had grown up in an orphanage and has taught art for twenty-five years. She had also worked with the Army doing arts and crafts.

"When we got Fort Dix there were over 10,000 refugees there from Kosovo who were being housed until host families or relatives could be found to take them. We were working mostly with children, five and up, doing silk screen paintings."

She described the complex process of silk screen work, adding, "It is not easy to explain to children how to do this, especially when they speak a different language. It got to be a little like a comedy; our interpreters kept disappearing. We were working in a tent during the hottest stretch of the summer, when the temperature was up around 100 degrees. I had three cameras around my neck, a Polaroid, a 35 millimeter and one for slides. When each of the kids would complete a work I would take a Polaroid and give it to them. That would attract a lot of the children, they wanted their picture taken, many of them had never seen a Polaroid before. I had to explain, whether through an interpreter but more often with sign language, that they had to do a painting to get their picture taken."

When asked about the subject matter of children who had been torn from their homes by war, Ms. Brokaw said, "It wasn't what you would think. The children painted peaceful scenes. The show at Southampton isn't of gory scenes. There is nothing that is going to shock anyone or trigger anyone who has had disturbing things happen to them.

"Art, whether it's painting or writing, is of healing and of hope. Perhaps someone's artwork will reflect something violent soon after a trauma, but as time goes on the work becomes free of that violence and that is what is beautiful about it."

When Candyce Brokaw began Survivors Art Foundation, did she expect the number of individuals it would draw and the projects it would undertake?

"Absolutely not. I thought it would draw people but not as many as it has. I never dreamed all this would grow to this magnitude. There are many more people than one would think who have suffered an extreme event in their lives. Trauma will touch everyone or someone close in the course of a lifetime. I didn't want to make a group that just included domestic, sexual and child abuse. I wanted to end the bias and include those whose suffered from AIDS, cancer, war. I want to make surviving a common thread. I want to show people there are resources out there, no one needs to suffer alone.

"We list agencies on our website, for addictions, abuse, disease. We don't counsel people but try to direct them where they can get help. For instance we got a call from a youth in Africa who wanted to commit suicide and we were able to connect him with an agency in his country."

The website (www.survivorsartfoundation.com) that Survivors Art Foundation began in 1998 was soon expanded. It was designed by Susan Adsit of Connecticut and is maintained by Mark Kramer of Holland who is the Systems Administrator for sarian-host.org and who gives survivors worldwide free email.

And that website has just been honored by the Smithsonian Institution for the Foundation's use of technology to benefit society. The Foundation's Internet Art Gallery is becoming part of the Permanent Research Collection on Information and Technology at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History.

"Last year's winner in our category," said Ms. Brokaw, "was Steven Spielberg, for his Starbright Foundation which donates computers to children with cancer."

She added, "We try to help artists in any way that we can, whether their medium is painting, sculpture, or poetry. Soon we will be adding videography. Art, especially if someone is suffering from a physical disability, might be a way for someone to earn a living. We charge no fee for showing any artist.

"The artists that we show on our websites don't have to be the best artists, we make no judgement on their work, but our shows are juried."

The show opening Saturday, March 18, at the Southampton Cultural Center on Pond Lane is in honor of Woman's History Month, though Ms. Brokaw said, "There are male artists in the show too, we're not excluding them because it's women's history month."

The list of the artists for the exhibit's show, includes, among others, one who has suffered from a brain tumor, another from Fibromyalgia, another from sexual abuse. There is work from the collective called Association Maya, which is comprised of 264 women of Mayan ancestry, survivors from the political massacres that occurred in Guatemala in the early '90s.

The show will also include the work that had been exhibited at the United Nations and the work of the young Kosovo refugees. The show is running from noon-6pm. March 18, 19 and March 25, 26, with the opening reception on March 18 at 6 p.m.

On Tuesday, March 14, Ms. Brokaw received a proclamation from Southampton Town Supervisor Vincent Cannuscio for the work of the Survivors Art Foundation. Ms. Brokaw said, "We would especially encourage groups, such as schools, to either come on the weekends or schedule tours with us during the week. When you see art from someone who has gone through events you've heard about, like the work from the Albanian children of Kosovo, it makes the newspapers real.

"As I've said, I've curated the show to be nontriggering. Parents can take their children to it. Adults will read the program and see that these artists have suffered terrible things, but their work is not morbid. There is hope in this work, and, because of that, there is healing."

Parade

Marching Down Main Street In Westhampton Beach With John Roland

By Janet Berg

It seems every year the residents and merchants of Westhampton await the month of March, when the crocus first blooms and spring is in the air; and they especially await the traditional St. Patrick's Day Parade as it marches down the green-painted street. Visions of little leprechauns dancing in the sunshine are what the children hold on to; but why is it that it almost always rains on their parade?

Spectators holding on to bent umbrellas with frozen fingers and red noses, peer down the elongated Main Street, waiting for the first sign of marchers to turn the corner. To them, it really doesn't matter what the weather is; they seem to have the tenacious spirit that drives the parade in the first place.

Emcee John Roland from Channel 5 news, stood on the reviewing stand honoring this year's parade for the new millennium. Being a Westhampton Beach resident and Ex-Grand Marshal, himself, Roland was in a jovial mood and gave many a cordial welcome.

Joining the Fox 5 News anchor on the review stand was the new Grand Marshal Pair, Jeanette McCreedy and Gordon Werner, chosen for the 2000 Parade, appropriately named "Floating Through the Century." McCreedy, fifty-seven of Hampton Bays, has been involved with the parade for almost thirty years and is the owner of Kara's Sports Pub on Mill Road; while Werner, forty-nine, is the owner of Follett and Werner Funeral Home on Mill Road in Westhampton Beach. Although he has only been living in the area for the past decade, Werner is known for his community spirit, which includes being Chairperson for Family Counseling Service and the Adopt a Family at Thanksgiving and Christmas program.

"And here are the prettiest people in our parade," Roland said, referring to the only other previous Co-Grand Marshals, Ria Del Bene and Mary Fritchie, both lifelong friends who graduated from the Six Corners School in 1937.

The crowds cheered as some of the old favorites, like the Coneheads and The Cycling Murrays (a family of cycling flute players), and the return of the Amityville Highlanders, who played their pipes, filed by.

Some highlights were a string band from the Philadelphia Area, (the Mummies) and the Civil War re-enactment Company K, 67th New York Volunteers Historical Association, which re-enacts various scenes from the Civil War. Uniforms and equipment has been faithfully reproduced, to portray individual soldiers from the original company.

Roland occasionally used humor, like when the Suffolk County Court Officials Association solemnly walked by and he said, "Oh, these are the people you only want to run into during a parade, not while they're working."

The parade came through town with a drumroll and a bang, offering much excitement and fun for all ages. The wide-eyed children laughed aloud at all the entertainment, and many a local dog wore green oversized bow ties and garnishes of sham-rocks.

With a shiver in his voice, Roland spoke of hot Irish coffee to the rows of frigid spectators dressed in their kelly green. Aside from the wet chill in the air, the parade always remains the sign of the "change of season."

Holding tight on to their bagpipes, men walked by complaining of the nasty draft that went up their skirts, out almost everyone wore a smile on their face, despite the weather. All the work that went into the parade paid off, as it was once again an exciting and wonderful event.

It seemed the "Luck 'O the Irish" rang true, because the heavy downpour began long before they marched down Main Street onto Sunset Avenue; yet for the duration of the parade, it stayed fairly dry. Within minutes of the parade coming to an end, the skies opened up once again with heavy rains that lasted throughout the remainder of the day and night. Perhaps, the children really did see those little leprechauns?

Proprietor of the Westhampton Beach T-shirt shop, Jim Flood predicted the rain stopped a lot of people from showing up, when he said, "I spoke with a few of my customers from Nassau County and it's raining really hard there, so the turnout won't be what was expected."

The lucky ones that showed up got a treat. Everyone should have rode out the storm, because as the saying goes, "Everyone loves a parade, especially the one in Westhampton Beach." •

review: fading traces

Fading Traces, a documentary about Ukrainian Jews who lived and died during the Holocaust, is aptly named. Like many similar films (such as Resnais' classic Night and Fog), it confronts the idea that people are facing the prospect of forgetting. The fear is that recollections will fade, leaving merely traces from the past. Like Resnais in Night and Fog, the filmmaker Walter Deuber also juxtaposes the land's present beauty with the region's past horrors during World War II. It is an ironic contrast that fuels the film with power and potency.

Other ironies exist that can be "traced" to some more classic documentaries as well. The often dispassionate demeanor of James Laue's voice-over narration, contrasted with raw emotional imagery, recalls Bunuel's Land Without Bread, a non-fiction film (which is not about the Holocaust) that also deals with pain and suffering. The final irony might well be the movie's point – visions of life prevail as in the Steven Spielberg-sponsored, Survivors of the Holocaust.

Happily, Dr. Deuber (who has a Ph.D. in Philosophy from the University of Zurich) has managed to avoid some pitfalls associated with Holocaust documentaries. He doesn't focus on interviews with survivors, at least in the film's beginning, a device which has now become a cliché. Nor does he use photographs or drawings or even archival footage to recreate the past.

Rather, Dr. Deuber recreates the particular time and place with on-location shooting, where the camera often "plays" a survivor. This technique is most moving in a recreated scene depicting the murder of several Jews, the subjective camera retracing their steps as they walk through the woods to their own execution. (This "retracing" serves as literal imagery for the film's figurative title, Fading Traces.)

Dr. Deuber continues to create a sense of the past, of the "This is how it was" feeling by concentrating on the Ukrainian Villages as they exist today. His probing but lyrical camera revisits important sites being described in the narration, but with on-location shooting, not photographs.

For a very few, the film will bring back real memories of the Holocaust. For some, like this critic, it will remind people of the concentration camps they may have visited. For most, the film is a strong statement that reinforces the horror of man's inhumanity to man.

Unfortunately, it's a statement that will always bear repeating.

TEN YEARS AGO
"Nobody At The Helm"
 March 16, 1990

The Town of East Hampton continues to go stumblingly along, in dealing with the resort town of Montauk. Montauk has no village government of its own and depends entirely upon direction provided by the Town officials in East Hampton. For years now there hasn't been any. There still isn't any.

Consider the events of just the past two weeks. Ten days ago, East Hampton Town raised the price of going to the beach from $50 to $100 for a parking permit for the season. This makes sense in East Hampton and Amagansett where ninety percent of the people going to the beach are either local residents or summer renters who don't want to be forced off the beach by the tourists. But it makes no sense in Montauk where perhaps seventy percent of those going to the beach are tourists out for a week or a weekend. (Parking is available by the day for $5). The Montauk Chamber of Commerce protested vigorously. But the East Hampton Town Board said they were doubling the prices to keep them more in line with what is being charged in Westhampton and Southampton, which in character are very much like East Hampton. The East Hampton Town Board, however, is not responsible for Westhampton or Southampton. They are responsible for Montauk.

"East Hampton Town does not spend money to support tourism in Montauk," Supervisor Bullock said.

But Supervisor Bullock has also said that tourism is a positive force in the community. What is he really saying? He is saying that, if you include East Hampton in the balance, it does not amount to the major concern of the majority of the constituency.

Also last week, the Montauk School Board met, very troubled, about a plan that might send the kids who graduate eighth grade in the Montauk school all the way to Sag Harbor for high school. At the present time, these kids are bussed sixteen miles to East Hampton High. Now the school board was considering sending Montauk's older kids to Pierson High School in Sag Harbor because the cost to Montauk taxpayers was going up at East Hampton High. Besides the fact that Pierson unquestionably does not provide the range of services of East Hampton, and besides the fact that the kids in Montauk would now have to be bussed twenty-three miles instead of sixteen, which would be more than anyone in the entire township by a factor of three, the Montauk School Board engaged in the argument, astonishingly, that all this was happening without their being able to say one single thing about it. There is no Montauk representative on the East Hampton Town Board of Education who could discuss the tuition costs there for the Montaukers.

I have suggested in the past that Montauk go its own way, form its own Village government and to hell with East Hampton. This has not happened, for whatever the reason. But whether a separate village is ever formed or not does not change the problems that have developed in Montauk, problems which nobody seems willing to address.

Here they are in a nutshell:

1. The restrictive zoning laws put into effect six years ago in East Hampton Town have virtually paralyzed any new attempts to improve or strengthen the tourist business in Montauk.

2. East Hampton Town has missed opportunity after opportunity to create any decent resort improvements in the community. They have passed on providing new beaches, they have passed on providing decent signs, they completely missed an opportunity to create beaches and possibly a historic museum on the Bay when they reviewed the Rough Riders Condominium, they have opposed a bypass that would relieve the 'traffic jams',

The Sheltered Islander By Sally O'Flynn

Observations of a New Islander #96 Deli Meets

On Route 114 on the way to the school is a deli that opens early. Pick-up trucks line the street on both sides as workmen get their coffee and danish and return to the street to conduct business.

In a coordinated dance between parked trucks and on-coming traffic, workmen carrying hot coffee, go from truck to truck making arrangements, swapping information and I think even telling off-color jokes... no, it's true.

There's an unwritten traffic law that trucks are allowed to stop anywhere along this short stretch and talk to other men in parked trucks. When you are behind them, just chill, they have a five minute window before they have to move again.

If you need to get in contact with your workman, park on the street early and act nonchalant, read a paper or something. When you see him, wait till he gets his coffee and roll, then sneak up on him and spin him around by his tool belt and yell, "Surprise!" He won't hit you because he's holding hot coffee and a roll and he's not going to throw down his breakfast. And he can't move if you've got him by the tools. But please be brief, there are other people acting nonchalant who needs to talk to him too.

I use this Deli Meet to get the weather. Whatever you see the men wearing reflects the weather for that day with dead-on accuracy. If the guys are in tee shirts and shorts, it's gonna be hot. If they're wearing a portion of a bright blue tarp with a hole ripped open for their heads, it is going to rain. If the Carhardt bib overalls are out, it's going to be cold. If the full body Carhardt suits are out, its going to be fing cold.

The only exception to the weather prediction rule is this one tall sandy haired guy with great legs and a nice smile, who wears sleeveless tee shirts and shorts until it snows. He had long hair until about six months ago, then someone told him it was the nineties. I'm looking forward to his spring collection of Shelter Island's most raggedy sleeveless tees with arm holes the length of the shirt. I've been trying to catch him and pull him into my van, but he's really fast.

That's another thing. Those tee-shirts... you never see a clean one or whole one ever. My brother David O'Flynn cuts the sleeves off perfectly good tee-shirts and then lays them down in the driveway and runs over them with his truck.

"What are you doing to that new tee-shirt?" I asked him in shock.

"Makin' it look mean..." he tells me.

"What about this one?" I asked holding up a clean tee with a Budweiser logo.

"That's not a work shirt, no holes in it makes it a date shirt."

Oh God help us...

I think there's a rule that the harder you work, the more dirty, stained and ripped up tee-shirts you're entitled to wear in public. David says I'm wrong, he says men always think of their appearance in public. If the tee-shirt is filthy, they turn it inside out before wearing it in public.

P.S. I've gotten alot of great feedback on last week's Darwin Awards. I think we have to have an East End version. If you have someone to nominate for a Darwin Award (first names only), fax it to me at 749-3003, or e-mail me at Dove555@aol.com.

Jeff Salaway, the owner of Nick & Toni's restaurant in East Hampton has purchased three resorts in Southampton and is converting them to what his firm calls Boutique Motels. The motels are The Capri, on County Road 39, The Bentley on Hill Station Road and The Atlantic also on County Road 39. The chain of motels are under the banner Utopia Lifestyles Inns and can be found on the Internet at HYPERLINK http://www.utopaiinns.com and www.utopaiinns.com. Salaway also created Rowdy Hall, the completely unique beer and burger pub in East Hampton. Eat in East Hampton, sleep in Southampton. The Atlantic, the first of the three, has just opened.

they haven't spent a penny, as Tony Bullock so naively pointed out, to do anything that would make the tourists who come to Montauk enjoy their stay more. (The improvements at the Lighthouse, the Gazebo and the Library have all come about the to the efforts of public citizens in Montauk. When I think of what East Hampton has done, I think of them closing off the parking on the old Montauk Highway so they could plant bushes.)

3. The laws involving condominiums, discovered and put into effect by tax accountants a dozen years ago, have considerably weakened the Montauk motel community's ability to promote itself. Motels are no longer owned by families, whose members did everything from make the beds to place ads in The New York Times. The motels are now owned by "boards" who know almost nothing about the visitor business, who have doubled the per-room rate and then don't care if anybody comes. They hire cheap immigrant labor that has to live somewhere and who, as a result of the above stringent zoning laws, are making a disaster out of Montauk's housing situation by living in the single rooms of old run down motels that have been purchased for that purpose. The recent eviction of a Spanish speaking family from Woodrow's Cottages in Montauk last week is something that never would have come about ten years ago. It shouldn't have come about today

4. Unless something is done soon to help Montauk compete for visitors with other resort towns, few visitors will soon choose to come there and the place will deteriorate into a grim, rundown community of illegal housing, slums, crime and worse. The downward spiral will be very difficult to stop.

5. If there is no separate Village; then the Town of East Hampton should create a completely separate set of zoning laws and ordinances for Montauk, decided upon by the Town after being advised by a committee of Montaukers.

6. There is at present a Montauk Advisory Board, but it meets infrequently. It should meet WEEKLY, form its own subcommittees, and deal with every aspect of Montauk life that is of public concern: education, promotion, culture, beach cleanups, traffic etc.

7. Nobody in Montauk is doing that now.

Paris Fashion Fall 2000

The Paris Fashion Collections seemed to be less in the news in the USA, maybe because the stock market and the dot.coms are the attention getters. Well, you should've been there, because fashion will be hot again and the designers have put their most creative foot foward. One interesting theme for the new millennium of fashion was a step backwards in time. Some of the designers went back to the 80s when flaunting afflence was less offensive. If the designers are right, the me-first generation is returning and rich lush clothess that scream "I've got it- I'm going to flaunt it" will be the thing this fall. Maybe it's the "Millionaire" syndrome on television so that anyone can be rich inspired some designers although I would doubt that they would ever credit Regis Philbin with being their inspiration. So be on the lookout for python prints, gold buttons and mini skirts. And of course some fashions most loyal were there to cheer, including self proclaimed fashion aficionado Jerry Sienfeld. Maybe wife Jessica needs expensive clothes for the new Hampton's home. Here's a look at some of the trends.

The Riddle of the Kemp's Ridley

Nine year old Michael from East Marion, and four other talkative boys, plus one quiet girl, sat around a table one cool, windy Friday afternoon after spending a week during their spring break at "Marine Camp." The camp, a weeklong day program, runs during winter school breaks and in the summer. Located at Suffolk County Marine Environmental Learning Center at Cedar Beach, the 70-acre county preserve of beach, salt marsh and bay habitats allow for year-round opportunities for education, research and scientific study. The camp is run by marine educators from the Cornell Marine Program, a division of Cornell Cooperative Extension of Suffolk County.

"What was neat was learning how long anemones live - they live thousands of years," said Michael, who plans to become a marine biologist when he grows up. "You mean coral - coral lives thousands of years," said Jonathan, 11, from Riverhead, correcting him. What did they do that they had never done before? "Water experiments," said Jared, 9, of Greenport. They had created a mix of blue water and salt, and poured it into beakers containing some fresh water, then voila, the blue (salty) water sank to the bottom, the fresh water rose to the top. "Density," said Jonathan knowingly.

"Arctic fish have antifreeze in their blood!" That was David, from Bellmore. Is that true I asked. "Yes," came 6 replies. "We caught shrimp with nets and fed them to flounder," continued David, remembering the summer-like day earlier in the week when they spent the afternoon roaming the Cedar Beach salt marsh learning about local ecology.

"I liked seeing all the animals close up," said Dan, 9, from Greenport, referring to the large open tanks housing scallops, clams, seastars, lobsters and about a dozen other forms of local marine life in the Cornell

Marine Lab. Continually bubbling with cold water circulating in from the bay outside, the tanks are used as "touch tanks" during camp. At other times, they serve as part of Cornell's nursery for spawning local species of scallops, oysters, and clams, for release into Long Island waters. Next door, in a room by himself, was a very popular reptile. "Ace, the Kemp's ridley, the rarest sea turtle in the world," said Jonathan, again who was good with the facts.

Sea turtles are graceful saltwater reptiles, well adapted to life in their marine world. With flipper-like limbs, they are able to swim long distances. When active, these marine reptiles must swim to the ocean surface to breathe every few minutes. When they are resting, they can remain underwater for as long as 2 hours without breathing. Although sea turtles live most of their lives in the ocean, adult females must return to land in order to lay their eggs. Scientists believe that nesting female turtles return to the same beach on which they were born. Often these long-lived reptiles travel lengthy distances from their feeding grounds to their nesting beaches. Just how old sea turtles live and how they find their nesting beaches remains a mystery.

While all six species of sea turtles in the U.S. are protected under the Endangered Species Act of 1973, the grey-green Kemp's ridley is the most critically endangered sea turtle in the world. Besides the Kemp's ridley, (Lepidochelys Kempii, named for Richard Kemp of Key West in 1880, after identifying this Atlantic marine turtle as a separate species) other endangered species are the hawksbill, and leatherback. Listed as threatened are the loggerhead, and the green and olive ridley sea turtles.

At "Marine Camp" the five to eight year olds were also fascinated with Ace, and knew a lot about him. "If you had a friend who had never seen Ace, what would you want them to know?" asked Doreen Williamson, Cornell's marine educator. The answers came swiftly from Caitlin, Chas, Payge, Christopher, Travis and Megan. "He's blind." "Don't put your fingers in the tank" "He almost froze to death - he can only see out of a crack in one eye."

What does a sea turtle look like? How is he different from land turtles? "He has flippers." "He cannot put his head in his shell." "He can never leave his shell...his bones and ribs are attached to his shell."

And did they know where Ace came from and how he happened to be at the Cornell Marine Lab at Cedar Beach? "A man found him on the beach in Mattituck." "They brought him in to Riverhead [Riverhead Foundation for Marine Research and Preservation 631-369-9840.]" Dolores had been there the night Ace came in, nearly frozen, showing no signs of life. Expert care brought him back to life, but he is too defenseless now to be released back into the wild.

And what do you do if you find a Kemp's ridley sea turtle on the beach? "He shouldn't be on the beach," Caitlin, 8, explained. Sea turtles should be swimming in the sea. "If he's on the beach, he's sick." Should you try to put him back in the water? "No." Should you bring him home and put him in the bathtub? "No." What should you do? "Call Riverhead."

I remember my own 4th grade teacher, Mrs. Fisher, responding to our class concerns about what can we do, walking our beaches, to keep our own sea turtles alive? Don't throw litter on the beach. Pick up any litter, especially plastic balloons, which sea turtles eat - they think it's food, and the plastic kills them.

Mary Foster is the development and public affairs supervisor for Cornell Marine Program, a division of Cornell Cooperative Extension of Suffolk County, providing environmental education to the public. Information: (631) 852-8660.

When in New York

ST. PATRICK'S DAY ACTIVITIES IN NEW YORK

By Allison Wiley

The Irish are an integral part of the framework of New York. The 1840's brought a wave of Irish immigrants numbering in the thousands. Escaping oppression, poverty and famine in their homeland, they traveled, to New York and overcame discrimination ("No Irish Need Apply") and the slums and degregation of Hell's Kitchen to rise to positions of prominence in politics, finance and the arts.

The Irish brought with them a creative spirit, their traditions and religious beliefs and their love of a good time. In Ireland, St. Patrick's Day is a solemn occasion. Parishioners go to church to give thanks to the patron saint of Ireland who is credited with driving the snakes from Ireland and who in reality brought Christian teachings to his adopted land. But here, it is more of a celebration and for one day of the year everyone is Irish and is invited to join in on the following festivities:

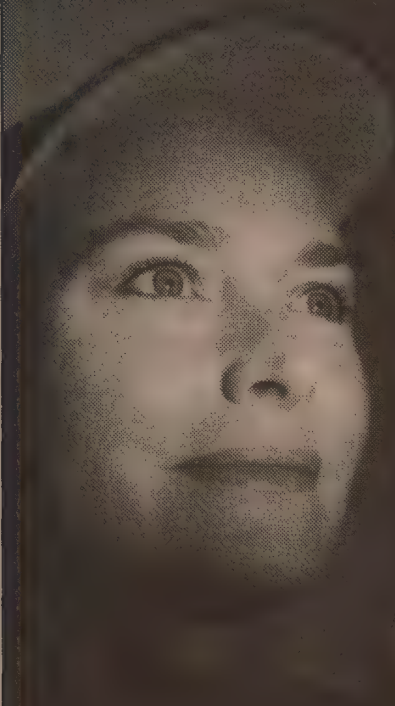

ST. PATRICK'S DAY PARADE - In its 239th year, this parade pre-dates the founding of the republic. Follow the green line to 44 Street and Fifth Avenue (concludes at 86 Street) at noon on Friday, March 17. Marching bands, kilted bagpipers, step dancers, savvy politicians, celtic organizations and others with ties to various counties in the ol' country march in this annual event. RIVERDANCE - The international phenomenon that contributed to the popularity of Irish dance and song stylings will be at the Gershwin Theatre for a limited engagement. Call 212-307-4100 for information. THE CHIEFTAINS - This annual event, featuring Ireland's oldest and best known band, will be held at Carnegie

Hall on March 17 at 8 p.m. Call 212-247-7800 for reservations. JAMES JOYCE'S THE DEAD - Christopher Walken and an all-star cast perform in this musical version of the classic story by Irish author James Joyce at The Belasco Theatre. Call 800-432-7250 for reservations. IRISH FOOTSTEPS IN OLD NEW YORK - The Municipal Art Society will conduct a walking tour on Friday, March 17 at 11 a.m. The walk will be from old St. Patrick's Cathedral to Five Points and will examine the contribution of the Irish to New York during the first half of the 19th century. Meet at the northeast corner of Lafayette and East 4th Streets. Call Jill Anson at 212-935-2960 for more information. CELTIC RHYTHM - Ireland's National Dance Company in its New York City debut at the Brooklyn Center for the Performing Arts on March 19. Small Airlines Mean Big Airfare Discounts

Spring is in the air and that means that summer is just around the corner. It is never too early to think about making your summer vacation plans. As the largest percentage of your travel dollar is expended in airfare, we would like to share with you some of the secrets that savvy business and leisure travelers utilize to reduce this expenditure. With this knowledge you will be able to spend the monies saved on the trip itself creating cherished memories. In this edition, we will supply you with the names, prices, phone numbers and routing of seven new airlines that nearly always undercut the more established ones. Although the internet has made it possible for everyone to shop for travel bargains (see next week's column) please note that fares for the new upstart airlines don't always appear in travel agents computers or on the big web travel sites, so you'll want to utilize the phone numbers provided below to confirm prices, schedules, etc. before making your travel plans.

AIR TRAN: They charge approximately $54 per flying hour, based on a fourteen day advance purchase. For the average walk-up roundtrip fare, add about $130. Flights originate from Atlanta and fly to the following destinations: Boston, Newark, New York (LaGuardia), Philadelphia, Washington DC, Newport News/Williamsburg, Greensboro/High Point/Winston Salem, Raleigh/Durham, Savannah, Jacksonville, Orlando, Ft. Lauderdale, Miami, Tampa, Ft. Myers, Knoxville, Dayton, Akron/Canton, Buffalo/Niagara, Flint, Chicago (Midway), Bloomington, Memphis, New Orleans, Biloxi, Houston, Dallas/Ft. Worth. Reservations: 800-247-8726 or www.airtran.com.

NATIONAL AIRLINES: They charge approximately $55 per flying hour, based on a fourteen day advance purchase (or for some flights a seven day advance purchase). For the average round-trip walk-up fare, add $175. Flights originate in Las Vegas and fly to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Philadelphia and New York (JFK). Reservations: 888-757-5387 or www.nationalairlines.com.

SPIRIT AIRLINES: They charge approximately $70 per flying hour. However, there are no set advance purchase rules or specific walk-up fares; prices are solely dependent upon availability. Flights originate in Denver and fly to Newark, Islip, New York (LaGuardia), Atlantic City, Myrtle Beach, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Detroit, Melbourne, West Palm Beach, Ft. Lauderdale, Ft. Myers, Tampa and Orlando. Reservations: 800-772-7117 or www.spiritair.com.

ATA AIRLINES: They charge approximately $75 per flying hour, with no set advance purchase rules or specific charges for walk-up fares-prices again dependent upon availability. Flights originate from Chicago and fly both domestic and international routes. Domestic: New York (LaGuardia and JFK), Philadelphia, Dayton, Lansing, Grand Rapids, Chicago, Milwaukee, Madison, Indianapolis, Des Moines, Denver, Dallas, Phoenix, Las Vegas, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Maui, Honolulu, St. Petersburg, Sarasota, Ft. Myers, Orlando, Ft. Lauderdale. International: Cancun, Mexico; San Juan, Puerto Rico; Dublin and Shannon, Ireland. Reservations: 800-435-9282 or www.ata.com.

PROAIR: They charge approximately $60 per flying hour with no added charge for walk-up fares. Flights originate in Detroit (Metro) and fly to New York (LaGuardia), Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington DC, Indianapolis, Atlanta, Detroit, Chicago (Midway), Tampa, Orlando, Tampa/St. Petersburg. Reservations: 800-939-9551 or www.proair.com.

FRONTIER AIRLINES: They charge approximately $47 per flying hour based on a seven day advance purchase. For the average walk-up fare, add about $150. Flights originate in Denver and fly to Seattle/Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Las Vegas, Salt Lake City, Phoenix, Denver, Albuquerque, El Paso, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Omaha, Minneapolis, Chicago (Midway), Bloomington/Normal, Atlanta, Orlando, Baltimore, Washington DC, Boston, New York (LaGuardia). Reservations: 800-432-1359 or www.flyfrontier.com.

SUN COUNTRY: They charge approximately $50, per flying hour, based on a seven day advance purchase. For the average walk-up fare, add about $40. Flights originate in Minneapolis/St. Paul and fly to Boston, New York (JFK), Washington DC, Orlando, Ft. Lauderdale, Miami, Ft. Myers, Sarasota, Tampa/St. Petersburg, Detroit, San Diego, Los Angeles, Las Vegas, San Francisco, Seattle. Reservations: 800-752-1218 or www.suncountry.com.

Interested in discounts on business or first class airfare? Try Smart Flyer (800-626-4449 or 212-268-9088) or Traveler Royale International (212-2687-5595). Although they can reduce your airfare in half, it will still be more than coach fares on any of the aforementioned. This is when you must decide if the little extras are worth more to you than the additional monies saved which can be spent on the trip itself.

In addition to the classic no frills, cost cutting carriers, you might also remember to check the rates of the "hybrid upstarts" carriers such as MetroJet (owned by US Airways at 888-638-7653); Delta Express (owned by Delta at 800-325-5205) and Southwest and Tower Airlines at 800-435-9792 and 800-34TOWER respectively. Southwest now services almost every area of the country except Minnesota, Wisconsin, the Dakotas and the Pacific Northwest and limited flights now leave from the Islip Airport. Tower's chief routes are between New York and the West Coast, Florida, San Juan, Paris and Tel Aviv.

Shop'til You Drop With Maria Tennariello

Getting revved up for St. Patrick's Day? My entire family is coming out this weekend for the Montauk St. Patrick's Day Parade. Let me see that's four adults and five children. I wondered how I could accommodate all the grandchildren. Well, there's a solution for every problem. I found TravelBabies.com for all of our needs while traveling with small children.

The services here are incredible and cover from Fire Island to the Hamptons. At TravelBabies.com you can rent cribs, strollers, high chairs, car seats, frame carriers and much more, including delivery and pick-up. So, I have reserved a crib, stroller and high chair for Alyssa who is only eight-month's old. Of course my son Randy and daughter-in-law Maria are thrilled that they won't have to drag all this stuff with them and when they leave, I'll just have it all picked up! Hey, what are Nonna's for anyway?

Heading to Sag Harbor, I stopped off at the Whalebone Store on Noyac Road for some great St. Patrick's Day decorations. Linda has this cute little store decorated for the weekend's festivities. This is a great store for greeting cards, gifts for almost every occasion, daily papers and magazines and of course the lotto. The Whalebone is certainly one of my favorites.

Noyac Liquor's was my next stop for some cooking wine and spirits. If you can't find what you're looking for here, ask the owner's and they will try to get it for you.

With some planting in mind, I stopped off at Unlimited Earth Care in Sag Harbor for A-1 advice on landscaping, maintenance, lawn care, hedge trimming, and specialty perennial gardens. From creative floral gardens to captivating treescapes Unlimited Earth Care is your source. Call 516-725-7551 for information.

In Balance is gearing up for spring and is starting their "mat classes" again. Call them for information at 725-8282.

Sail into the season with a coastal navigation course on weekends in March, April and May at Tompkins

Yacht Sales. The two day course is given by Sag Harbor Sailing School and provides a detailed knowledge of navigating and piloting, rules of the "road," reading nautical charts and symbols, understanding the tides and currents, navigating in the fog, and use of electronic aides including global positioning system. Classes are limited call 631-725-5100 for information.

Looking for those ever so popular smocked dresses? Well, Punch Children's Clothing on Main Street has them. Also available are hand-knit sweaters, pajamas, leggings, bathing suits and great baby gifts.

Can't leave Sag Harbor without checking in at Serafina on Main Street. They are finally opening with a brand new spring menu on Thursday, March 16. Starting on Thursday, Friday and Sunday Serafina is offering a three-course prix fixe menu for $21.95. Stop in and say hi!

East Hampton was buzzing with shoppers and I was in my glory. I stopped off at Mainlines active wear for men, women and children. Ready to go, they have everything you need for camp and summer vacation. Great swimsuits, shorts, tees, goggles, bathing caps, gymnastic and dance apparel and more. They are located on Park Place in East Hampton.

Speaking of camps, check out East Hampton Sports Camp for boys and girls, ages six to twelve in session from June 26 until September 1. Conveniently located east of the windmill on Three-Mile Harbor. Call 631-267-CAMP.

Fresh New Look For Spring At T.J. Maxx

The youths and teens of 2000 crave bursts of color and the look for spring fashion is funky and relaxed. Spring 2000 is fresh, vibrant and alive. Contemporary youths of all ages will clamor for bold new looks. Favorite details this season include beaded tops, ruffled sleeves and paisley prints for her and the cool, casual looks of surf wear for him. All in fun shades of turquoise, fuschia, chartreuse, lemon and orange.

"Youth fashion for spring is fun, loose and colorful," explains T.J. Maxx Fashion Spokesperson Laura Cervone. "The looks feature bursts of color with funky fashion twists including a resurgence of true 'flower power.' Hawaiian prints and bold florals reign in everything from capri length pants to beaded jerseys. The best idea? Find these new looks for less by shopping at off-price retailers such as T.J. Maxx.

New Trends

New looks abound this season as the overall tone is less fitted; the mood is definitely more casual for the kids.

Juniors: Matched coordinates are definitely passe. Teens will love today's most updated 'hippie chick': embroidered and embellished off-the-shoulder peasant tops in bright colors over a fringed denim skirt with silver pocket detailing. Also, look for huge floral print skirts, perfect with a "barely there" tank, tube or halter-top,

Capris (my favorite) with wider legs are immensely popular - especially in graphic animal prints or embellished with ethnic-inspired ribbon taping. Pant lengths range from below the knee to the ankle with the flood pant making a major debut.

Girls: Prints abound, in both tops and bottoms. Look for bright colored tops with ethnic and bohemian influences. Capris are the ultimate trendsetter. Denim and twill are the most popular fabrics; look for a wide array of solid colors adorned with embroidery, ribbons and beading. Dresses are soft and long. Top trends include pastel linens, airy chiffrons, floral prints and two-piece styles featuring cardigans.

Boys: The options are truly conducive to outdoor fun! Color also plays an integral role in the young man's wardrobe. Bright tangerine and lime green, go side-by-side with soft pastels. Tiki and bohemian prints are everywhere. Look for wave pants and board shorts in neutrals such as olive and khaki. Pair with bold patterned shirts (anything Hawaiian is an absolute must!) The biggest new looks: the "surfer" (screen tee under a printed woven shirt with utility pants or shorts); "street chic" (urban designer names with big logos): "active-inspired" (striping, mesh inserts and vents).

Shoes

In keeping with Spring 2000's more casual appeal, shoes offer sheer comfort with fashionable new twists. Try beaded platform flip-flops (perfect with popular capris or skirts), the most brilliant toned sneakers, and exciting new chunky-soled clogs and sandals. Other feminine favorites include open toe slides, or sandals adorned with bows, ties or floral prints.

Teens and preteens are constantly expanding their wardrobes. To keep their fashion fresh and affordable, buying off-price is the perfect solution. T.J. Maxx is an off-price retailer with over 630 stores throughout the country. The chain sells brand name, designer merchandise for the entire family and home at up to 60% less than department and specialty store regular prices, every day. For the nearest T.J., Maxx store call 1-800-2TJ-MAXX.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"REPRESENTING": A SHOW OF IDENTITIES AT THE PARRISH

The subject of "identity" knows no boundaries, pervading many disciplines – including psychology, sociology, and the arts. Even so, "Self-image" is not a theoretical concept we can relegate to academic or scientific pursuits. It's something we take with us wherever we go. Literally.

The current exhibit at The Parrish Art Museum understands that – as do the Southampton High School students who helped organize this lively, comprehensive show. And so should adult viewers who certainly must appreciate the fact that identity is not solely the primary preoccupation of a society's teenage population. Rather, determining identity is a life-long process, whether it derives from how others treat us, or how "significant" others see us, or how we compare ourselves to other people.

While the exhibit's organizers have taken these basic principles and applied different labels to the art works (like "emerging" and "missing" identities), such classifications (by whatever name) still help explain what we're seeing. The only problem is that labeling tends to be restrictive; depending on interpretation, a work could be perceived in various ways. For example, how do we perceive the exhibit's photograph by Cindy

Kimeon McLain's "Morning Search" (detail)

Sherman? Is it one that signifies "identity crisis" or an "assumed identity?" (This critic isn't quite sure herself.) On one hand, it seems like a futile academic exercise to "label" these pieces; conversely, such an endeavor provides a significant learning experience for the students (if they, indeed, had a voice in the classifications).

Despite the inherent problems with categorizing, the exhibit's pieces are well-chosen, standing on their own as art and representing a variety of media and multicultural sensibilities: Beat Streuli's video, showing the non-identity of Fifth Avenue passers-by; Kimowan McLain's photocopy transfer on the wall, displaying a line-up of a disappearing/appearing male figure; and Nikki Lee's autobiographical snapshots (recalling Nan Goldin's similar project).

Outside The Parrish, the exhibit continues with three spray enamel portraits of students which hang on the gate. But the huge pieces represent more than an artistic and learning collaboration between artist-in-residence, Brett Cook Dizney, and 10 Southampton High School pupils. The presentation also marks a salient connection between a museum and its community. Other museum missions aside, this is a particularly grand goal that The Parrish has achieved.

The current show will be at The Parrish until April 9.

HONORING THE ARTIST: JAMES GUPPY

While the word "guppy" is well-known to children who love collecting small minnow-like fish, it's also a name that's well-known to the Australian art community where painter James Guppy resided and worked for many years. While he's now happily living in Hampton Bays, Mr. Guppy can't quite shake the association with fish as a Marine Science illustrator at Southampton College's Arts and Media Department. (Actually, it's no coincidence that the artist shares a name with the popular fish; a distant relative named Guppy discovered it in the Caribbean during the Victorian Age.)

Born in Britain, Mr. Guppy moved to Australia in 1982 and settled in Mullumbimby, an area known for its subtropical rain forest as well as the setting for D.H. Lawrence's novel, Kangaroo. In 1998 Mr. Guppy and his American wife moved to Long Island. And why Long Island of all places? It's a far cry from Australia, to be sure. "My wife has her family here," Mr. Guppy explains simply. "And since some of my family is in Wales, it's a lot easier to get there from the United States than from Australia."

We can understand other attractions that the East End holds for Mr. Guppy, the sea often serving as a primary subject in his work. "Many of my paintings are sea connected," he notes. "Inappropriate domestic objects, like a giant teapot, floating in water. These works follow a surrealist tradition where I have a dialogue with the unconscious. I only know the conscious, however. I can't answer for the unconscious."

Other works by Mr. Guppy convey similar ideas: for example, his piece with a huge rose lashed to a fishing boat in this year's juried exhibit at The Parrish Museum. What's curious is the fact that this image is rendered on an embroidery hoop, the circle being a significant configuration for Mr. Guppy. (This week's cover of Dan's Papers is also a figure placed in a circle.)

Is there an important theme that Mr. Guppy is trying to convey with the circle – that perhaps people are trapped by it, or conversely, that the circle of life means eternity? "I don't want to pin the narrative down," Mr. Guppy responds. "It may take a couple of years for me to know what my work means. I'm more interested in what other people think about it. My art is a Rorschach Test." If that is so, Mr. Guppy's work can signify any number of interpretations. He himself has described his surreal tendencies as Lewis Carroll meeting Herman Melville.

Quite a complex and provocative combination coming from a man who, by his own admission, was a remedial student during his early days. "I could always paint despite the remedial classes," Mr. Guppy recalls now. "But I caught up." He sure did, going on to obtain two degrees, one in Economics and the other in the Visual Arts both at Britain's Lancaster University.

The latter degree, with a speciality in Mural Arts, led Mr. Guppy to work on large scale projects, including eight story buildings. "I love scale," he says. "Really big things or really small things. Small things establish intimacy. You can talk to someone personally that way." Yet Mr. Guppy's murals communicate intimacy as well. "I did some murals in university bars," he explains, "both in Britain and Australia where they connected with a large audience. In fact, I wrote a fifty-thousand word thesis for my degree on the British Mural Movement."

For the time being, Mr. Guppy is sticking to a much smaller format, although he says he may "get bigger again." Either way, he'll continue to connect with people, conveying the kind of intimacy that he's recognized for.

James Guppy

Mr. Guppy's work can be seen currently at East Hampton's Lizan Tops Gallery; his next show there will be from July 29- August 15.

The Bridgehampton Killer Bees have certainly proved themselves as a basketball power to be reckoned with since the late 1970's. After they captured three straight titles '96-'98, the core of the team graduated and the Bees had a so-so season in 1998-99. They weren't expected to do much better this season, but they defied the experts, winning the Suffolk County title in their division and becoming a force in the playoffs while compiling an 18-5 record. Their season ended just games short of another State title. Coach Carl Johnson, who was a player on the three-time champions at the end of the '70s and who led the Bees as three-time champs in the '90s, can only be optimistic about the Killer Bees in the 21st century. Dan's Papers "They Made The Movie Here" Film Festival 2000

Here we go again, Dan's Papers "They Made The Movie Here Film Festival" returns, with a vengeance, on Saturday March 18th - 3 p.m. - and with a difference. Oh it's still free, all-right but now the films are being shown with state of the art equipment at the Ross School Library, 18 Goodfriend Drive in East Hampton (off Route 114). And... the first film perfectly epitomizes the "Films Made Here" Festival theme. Last Summer In The Hamptons was entirely shot here in the Hampt-Hamps and was made and performed by people who have a great deal invested in this East End community and I'm not necessarily talking about real estate. The film pictures stage and movie people embroiled in a theatrically bristling, friction-packed weekend at the family home of an aging but still dynamic actress, portrayed by the venerable Viveca Lindfors (pretty much being herself).

Ms. Lindfors is Helena Nora (and vice-versa). She bought her last East Hampton house years ago when she starred in Hollywood movies opposite leads like Errol Flynn. Today, the house shingles have darkened and the white trim paint is peeling and she is tiring. For years, she's made the small estate a theatre workshop for would-be actors and playwrights to study and work at the craft for her. In the summer months she puts on plays outdoors on her property.

Last Summer In the Hamptons

This summer she deliberately rounds up all of her children, in-laws and grand-children to announce to them and her extended family of apprentices, that this will be their last summer there... she is selling the property she had named "Proskurov." No one in her large family knows why. We the audience, find the significance of the title only in the last frame of the closing credits.

The odd and gratuitous title is typical of the matriarch's big, over-emotional family... all of whom have contracted the theatrical virus of passion. Their interrelating falls heavily into casting as dysfunctional. On top of the family's bubbling pot of steamy personalities, is dangled a prime cut of added heat... a young prominent movie star. When she's dropped in as a weekend guest... things really percolate.

The very independent director, Henry Jaglom, has added personal Hampton mementos to the script he has written with Victoria Hoyt who also co-stars with Lindfors as the Hollywood star/house guest. The plot (which Mr. Jaglom has credited thanks to Anton Chekhov, James Joyce and Jean Renoir) centers somewhat around a play written by a grandson, played by Jon Robin Baitz. It is so good, everyone wants to act in it or direct it and try very hard to get in on it. A large cast keeps the "Theatre People" funny and moving. Sharing poses are Andre Gregory, Martha Plimpton, Savanna Boucher, Ron Rifkin, Nick Gregory, Diane Salinger and many more. In cameos are Roscoe Lee Browne and the late Roddy McDowall.

Viveca Lindfors, the once raven-haired movie beauty is seen in this film with flaring white hair but at the peak of her eloquent zeal and authority after years of important stage roles. If you ever wonder about the worth of motion picture imagery, here is a strong message. Ms. Lindfors has passed on but, there she is on the screen... kind of chiseled into a mountainside for us to consider with admiration and respect.

Call for reservations at Dan's Papers, 537-0500, for seating in the grand warmth-paneled library at the Ross School.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni, is the producer, writer and director of award-winning films for ABC, NBC, PBS and European feature films. He is assisted in this column by Sarah Halsey who hosts with him the Dan's Papers Film Festival mentioned above.

MAYOR KOCH Goes To THE MOVIES

This film, which is composed of three different short stories, is the cinematic equivalent of a triptych. They are not related, except that they each concern lesbian relationships.

The first two stories are superb. The earliest story has the most impact because of the extraordinary acting. All of the performances are brilliant, particularly the performances of the two principale actors: Marian Seldes and Vaneasa Redgrave. Marian Seldes plays Abby, one of two older lesbians who have lived together for a long time. Edith is played by Vanessa Redgrave. Edith appears to be the older of the two women, probably in her 70s. Redgrave's performance can only be described as magnificent.

The two women are at home when Abby apparently suffers a stroke and is rushed to the hospital. She falls into a coma. Edith stays at the hospital, not willing to say that she is a relative, and therefore, is not permitted to enter the ward to see Abby. Hours later, Abby dies, and no one tells Edith who has stayed all night in the hospital lounge. She learns of the death of her partner the next morning.

This is a heart breaking story. Adding to the audience's pain is having to witness the difference in the way the hospital treats a wife whose husband suffered a heart attack and Edith, the surviving partner in a domestic partnership who has lost her partner.

There is a special horror in what happens when Abby's nephew Sam (Donald Bison) comes to claim the body, having been notified by Edith. Sam, with his wife and their daughter in tow, then claim all of Abby's belongings, including the house which is in Abby's name, even though Edith paid half of the mortgage over the years.

This episode occurs in 1961 when lesbians were fearful of public exposure and very discreet, not calling attention to their relationship, and afraid to hold hands in public. I cannot think of a short story I have seen on screen or read that has more impact than this episode.

The second episode takes place on a college campus in 1972, and involves four lesbian friends making up two couples, more or less attached. They have created a feminist club on campus, and are told by the other feminists that lesbians are not wanted because they hinder the effort for equality.

The four decide to go to a lesbian bar they've never been to. When they get there, they discover it is in fact a straight bar, but Linda (Michelle Williams) is attracted to a very attractive butch lesbian named Amy (Chloe Sevigny), who is standing at the bar dressed in men's clothing. An affair begins, and the sex scenes are very explicit. Linda's three friends try to end the relationship because they resent the masculine appearing Amy. How it is resolved is worth your attention.

Chloe Sevigny also appeared in Boy's Don't Cry. In that film, she played Lana, the young woman who falls in love with Brandon, the transsexual played by Hilary Swank. It is interesting to see Chloe play the butch role in If These Walls Could Talk and contrast her characterization with that of Hilary Swank in Boys Don't Cry.

The third episode is the weakest and takes place in the year 2000. This time it is a couple in their early forties. Fran (Sharon Stone) is going to try to become pregnant using sperm from a sperm bank. Her partner is Cal (Ellen DeGeneres) How they select the donor from a brochure describing the donor's characteristics and job and how Fran is ultimately impregnated makes up the whole story.

This is a weak story. Making matters worse, the acting cannot compare with that of the two earlier episodes. The two actors and the director Anne Heche rely on sinicks so ultimately you have the feeling that you are watching a foolish sitcom, not a serious story.

HBO should be applauded for breaking new ground. You can be sure that other networks will follow because the story of lesbians has not been well covered. Much more attention has been given on TV and in movies to gay men's relationships. It is time for equality in coverage.

Before embarking on his present career as Dan's Papers film critic, Ed Koch was the Mayor of New York City.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

The folks in Ireland are probably cooking a fine Irish broth and roasting a whole salmon for a traditional St. Patrick's Day celebration this coming weekend.

It's March, and Irish or not, here in the states St. Patrick's Day simply isn't St. Patrick's Day without a succulent plate of corned beef and cabbage. To approximate the time-honored taste of corned beef, simmer a brisket pickled in brine, available as fresh corned beef at your butcher's, with a savory mix of herbs and spices. The tough fibers of the meat cook gently to a succulent tenderness with boiled carrots, potatoes and cabbage. Complete the dish with a tasty serving of mustard horseradish sauce.

A dear friend, originally from Belfast, Ireland, suggests that an Irish broth, typically a vegetable soup, is frequently served at meal time in Ireland. When she recently prepared this delectable soup, chock full of vegetables, lentils, split peas and barley she made reference to the "Irish broth" of her homeland with a deep sense of tradition. Here is my version of Patricia's "Irish broth" to add a little authenticity to your happy St. Patrick's Day dinner.

IRISH BROTH WITH VEGETABLES, LENTILS AND BARLEY

"Irish broth" is a typical reference to soup frequently served at mealtime in Ireland. This version with lentils, peas and barley is a timely and healthy addition to make your St. Patrick's Day dinner complete.

Serves 8

8 cups chicken-stock, preferably homemade
1/2 pound lentils, rinsed and picked over
1 cup dry split peas
1 cup pearl barley
2-3 carrots, peeled and diced small

2 parsnips, peeled and diced small
2 ribs celery, ribbed and diced small
2 well-washed leeks, thinly sliced
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Put the broth in a large saucepan and bring to the edge of a boil. Add the lentils, peas and barley, adjust heat to medium and cook at a brisk simmer for 20-25 minutes. Add carrots, parsnips, celery and leeks and season to taste with salt and pepper. (If using canned chicken broth, use the low-sodium which can still tend to be a little salty so adjust your need for any additional salt accordingly.)

2. Simmer the soup for an additional 20-25 minutes until vegetables are tender and lentils, peas and barley are cooked. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary and serve hot. Can be prepared up to a day ahead. Bring to room temperature before reheating.

CORNEBEEF AND CABBAGE WITH MUSTARD HORSEERADISH SAUCE

Fresh corned beef is a brisket which has been pickled in brine. Properly cooked it is succulent and delicious. The low-fat (not fat-free) mayonnaise is half the calories of regular mayonnaise without any discernible difference in taste.

Serves 6-8

1 fresh corned beef, about 5 pounds
1 large onion, studded with 4 cloves
2 ribs celery and celery leaves
3 sprigs flat-leaf Italian parsley
2 bay leaves
8-10 whole black peppercorns
4-5 large carrots
4 large boiling potatoes, peeled and halved

1 large head cabbage, cut into 6-8 wedges

Mustard horseradish sauce*

3 tablespoons grainy Dijon mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
6 tablespoons low-fat mayonnaise

1. Place beef in a large enamel over-iron saucepan, such as Le Creuset or a Dutch oven. Pour over enough water to cover the meat by 2-3 inches and bring to a boil. Skim the surface of any debris rising to the surface and put in the onion, celery, celery leaves, parsley, bay leaves and peppercorns. Adjust heat to medium and cook at a brisk simmer, with cover ajar, for 3 1/2 to 4 hours. Turn the meat every 30 minutes or so. Liquid will begin to evaporate after about 1 1/2 hours. Add enough fresh water to keep the meat barely covered at all times.

2. About 30 minutes before the meat is done most of the fatty liquid will have evaporated. Add more water to the pot and put in the carrots and potatoes and cook until the vegetables and the meat are tender.

3. In a separate saucepan boil the cabbage wedges in salted water for about 20-25 minutes. Drain when ready to serve.

4. When meat is fork tender transfer to a carving board. With slotted spoon divide the carrots and potatoes on 6-8 plates with a wedge of cabbage. Discard any remaining liquid in the pot. Slice the meat across the grain and arrange overlapping slices alongside the vegetables. Serve with a dollop of mustard horseradish sauce*

* In a mixing bowl combine ingredients for the sauce and stir to mix.

Artichokes: Food Of The Gods

Artichokes nourish the romantic and feed the health-minded. Few foods are as richly endowed with romantic stories as the artichoke, and one tale from mythology has it that the artichoke grew out of a desire for the unattainable. The Greek god, Zeus, fell hopelessly in love with Cynara, a beautiful young maiden. Unable to convince Cynara to leave her mother and her earthly home to become a goddess, Zeus became furious. His unrequited love for Cynara made Zeus so enraged, he transformed her into an artichoke, forever captivating her tender heart in the center of thorny leaves. To this day the artichoke is known to enchant the senses with its unique design and ethereal flavor.

Until recently, the artichoke was thought of as only a delicacy and, for some in earlier times, an aphrodisiac. Historically, Europeans included the choke in their diet because of its ability to "settle the stomach." A study conducted by the PISAGAH Bio-Medical Research Center in Asheville, N.C. noted that the artichoke contains a substance called cynarin. This compound helps lower total blood cholesterol and triglycerides, reducing the risk of heart attack. Additional research indicates that artichokes contain another substance called silymarin, which may also lower cholesterol and reduce the risk of cancer, liver disease, and heart disease. Choosing artichokes and/or eating five or more servings of fruit and vegetables a day may reduce the risk of these diseases and help control obesity.

When you want to fill up and feel good, remember nature's best-kept secret-the artichoke. A good source of folate, magnesium, fiber, and vitamin C, artichokes are also fat free, cholesterol free, and low calorie. The centerpiece of an elegant table, the artichoke is the perfect whole food solution for a nutritious meal.

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

As I mentioned a couple of weeks ago, we honored Nate Corwin of Ivy Acres at our recent Annual Dinner Dance. This year, the Award Selection Committee also decided to honor the 14 past presidents who volunteered their time and talents over the years. We were very fortunate to have several of them with us that night. Tony Brand, Sr. and Rob Abramowski, second and third presidents and founding members, flew in from Florida to be there. Also in attendance were: Gilbert Smith, brother of Herbert Smith; Cliff Foster, Elmer Zeh, Tony Brand, Jr., Nate Corwin and Lyle Wells. It was heartwarming to be able to honor all of them for their years of dedication, time and hard work, which has helped to build the Long Island Farm Bureau into the strong, effective, grass-roots advocacy organization it is today.

In researching their terms of office, we came up with quite a bit of interesting historical information. I'd like to share with you some of these accomplishments and memories.

Amherst Davis was a founding member and our first president. During his term from 1955-1959, a key issue for Farm Bureau was the states taking of land by eminent domain. It was also during his term that Nassau & Suffolk County Farm Bureaus merged into the Long Island Farm Bureau. During Tony Brand, Sr's term, from 1960 to 1963, key issues included off-shore labor, and Green Belt. We also had our first female board member and the first directory, entitled "The Key", was published. An interesting note in 1962 dinner dance tickets cost $3.50 (in 2000, it was $50)!

Peter R. (Rob) Abramowski (1964-1966) dealt with issues such as obtaining a seat for a farmer on the Pesticide Control Board. LIFB supported LINAs stand in opposition of the licensing of arborists, and the first Farmer Citizen Award was, given in 1966. During 4th president Richard Corwith's 1967-1969 term, key issues included opposing a jetport in Calverton, and an exploding device was deemed normal farm operations in Brookhaven, a ruling granted in favor of duck farmers. Herbert Smith (1970-1971), our 5th president, dealt with Caesar Chavez efforts to unionize L.I. farmworkers.

East End Farming

President number 6, Lloyd Rasweiler (1972-1974) saw the beginning of the fight against LILCO efforts to construct power lines for the Jamesport Power Plant. LIFB began accepting fishermen as members, and hired the first Executive Secretary, Larry Bertholf. Cliff Foster (1975-1977), our 7th president, continued the fight against Jamesport Power Plant development. Attorney Tom Twomey was hired, which would prove to be one of our best moves. The Farmer Citizen Award was renamed to honor our first president and founding member, Amherst Davis.

Harrison Demerest (1978-1980), our 8th president, worked with Suffolk County Executive Peter Cohalan to complete the first phase of the County farmland acquisition, the first in the nation. During Elmer Zehs 1981-1983 term, we defeated the LILCO effort to build the Jamesport Power Plant. Elmer says he remembers being asked by Cliff Foster to just come to a Farm Bureau meeting and next thing he knew, he says, he was elected treasurer! Tony Brand, Jr. carried on as the first and only son (so far) to follow in his father's footsteps as our 10th president from 1984-1986. Tony says that the diversification of Long Island commodities really started to expand during his term. There was a revitalization of promotional efforts, including the "Grown on Long Island" logo contest and the usage of the new logo by members. In cooperation with NYFB, Ken Schmitt (1987-1989), led the fight against the NY DEC on proposed Pesticide notification, and Joe Gergela was hired as Executive Secretary.

Lyle Wells, President number 12 (1990-1992), was instrumental in kicking up promotional efforts a few notches, including the inauguration of "Overall Connection", the associate member newsletter, and the hiring of a full-time promotion coordinator. With the assistance of the executive secretary, he participated in the drafting of the Farmland Agriculture Protection Act of 1992, and The Governor's Program Bill passed into NY State Law. Lucky 13, Nate Corwin (1993-1995), was involved with the Long Island Pine Barrens Protection Act. He worked to ensure the inclusion of LIFB at the table to protect agricultural interests as best we could. Two bills concerning agricultural assessment were passed in NYS legislature: 1) Land less than 10 acres now qualified, providing there was income generated from that land and 2) Horse boarding now qualified for reduced assessment. Phil Schmitt, our 14th and immediate past president, served from 1996 to 1998. A key issue for Phil was the Peconic Region Community Preservation Act in 1998, which involves the 2% land transfer tax. After a two-year search, we found and moved into our current larger offices in Calverton, and it was during his term that we achieved Lyle's membership goal challenge of 5,000.

While listening to current president Howard Johnson share this information that evening with the nearly 250 people in attendance, the main point of honoring our past presidents was driven home to me. Teamwork. People working together to achieve a common goal. In our case, the preservation of our agricultural heritage. I felt very proud to have been a part of such a noble effort for the past twelve years, and I felt pride for this group of strong, honorable men, these farmers and leaders.

Joseph Gergela III is executive director of Long Island Farm Bureau

Cancer Care On The East End

There was a time when residents of eastern Long Island had to travel west to Nassau County or Manhattan when seeking quality medical care. As the population of the East End expands, bringing more visitors and year round residents, the presence of local state-of-the-art health-facilities is also increasing. East End Hematology Oncology is one such practice. With offices in both Riverhead and Southampton, East End Hematology Oncology is committed to providing East End patients with excellent cancer care in a familiar, local environment.

Individualized and Attentive Treatment from a Staff of Compassionate Professionals

The well-trained healthcare team at East End Hematology Oncology provides professional hematology and oncologic care in a compassionate and supportive atmosphere. The leading medical staff is comprised of practice founder Dr. Louis Avvento, Dr. Susan Emanuele and Dr. Marilyn McLaughlin. Dr.

Avvento is affiliated with Southampton Hospital, Central Suffolk Hospital in Riverhead and is a consultant in Hematology-Oncology at Eastern Long Island Hospital in Greenport. He began practicing on eastern Long Island in 1988 and is board certified in both Medical Oncology and Hematology. Dr. Emanuele joined East End Hematology Oncology in 1996. She is a board certified Medical Oncologist with fellowship training from the prestigious Scripps Clinic in LaJolla, California. Dr. McLaughlin, who brings a strong research background to East End Hematology Oncology, is an associate. Together, the board certified physicians and oncology certified RN's at East End Hematology Oncology provide their patients with knowledge of state-of-the-art treatment techniques and expertise treating a wide range of cancers.

Cancer Treatment Requires Constant Study

Patients at East End Hematology Oncology benefit from a staff that maintains the highest standards of patient care. The physicians at East End Hematology Oncology continually build on their existing knowledge and stay abreast of the latest techniques and developments in cancer care by attending American Society of Clinical Oncology conferences and by pursuing ongoing medical education and training. The treatments practiced at East End Hematology Oncology are constantly evolving to reflect the advances that are being made everyday in the treatment of cancer. Advances and improvements in treatment as well as early detection are largely responsible for the decline in cancer mortality rates.

Eastern Long Island cancer patients no longer need to travel great distances and fight traffic for treatment. At East End Hematology Oncology they find quality cancer care, close to home.

Widespread Digestive Problem Controlled With Dietary Fiber

The most prevalent digestive problem in the United States is estimated to affect over 40 million Americans and ranks with the common cold as a leading cause for missing work. Fortunately, this disruptive and painful condition can often be controlled simply by adding natural fiber to the daily diet.

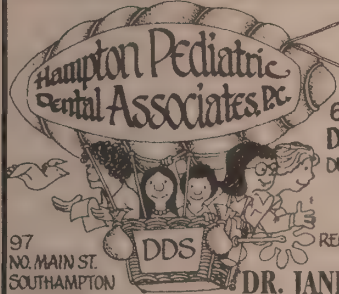

Known as irritable bowel syndrome (IBS), or "nervous stomach," this widespread gastric disorder has been found to affect up to 70 percent of all patients with digestive system complaints. Although its cause is unknown, its most common symptoms are abdominal pain, constipation, diarrhea, gas, nausea and bloating.

Generally speaking, the pain is in the lower abdomen and is characterized by a cramped feeling that comes and goes. It is often relieved by the passage of stools or gas. Diarrhea is usually associated with meals and frequently occurs early in the day. In many patients, constipation or infrequent bowel movements alternate with diarrhea or a sense of urgency.

While IBS is not life-threatening, its variable and unpredictable nature can seriously hamper and disrupt daily life. The good news, however, is that a growing body of clinical data has found that these symptoms can usually be relieved by consuming adequate dietary fiber. One study of patients with IBS, for example, showed that more than 80 percent significantly improved by adding psyllium, a natural fiber supplement, to their daily diet. Psyllium normalizes the bowel to produce soft, well-formed stools

What You Think Can Be As Important As What You Eat

Staying trim is a sweet victory for Sarah, The Duchess of York. No longer caught up in the futility of yo-yo dieting, she finally has a handle on her weight now that she has learned through Weight Watchers the basics about nutrition and healthy eating.

In a new audio tape from Weight Watchers called "Making the Difference with the Duchess," The Duchess of York vividly recounts how losing weight helped her to regain control of her life, health and self-esteem. It's like a personal conversation with the world's most famous Weight Watchers member.

Throughout the forty-five minute tape, the Duchess speaks frankly about the obstacles that used to throw her off course and undermine her best intentions to lose weight. As she recalls the days when she would eat uncontrollably out of loneliness, insecurity and stress, it's clear that she has a lot in common with anyone who has a weight problem.

Since successful dieting means changing what's in your head as well as what's on your plate, the Duchess offers a new outlook on the emotional aspects of losing weight. She explains how the impact of losing just 10 percent of your body weight equals a 100 percent motivational jump-start towards a healthier lifestyle, which is how she looked at her weight loss.

Listening to her story is like talking to a friend who will help inspire you to lose weight and change your life for the better. She offers these tips:

Redefine your relationship with food – Never think that dieting means deserting your favorite foods. You can prepare comfort foods in a healthier style and use portion control to enjoy every meal.

Bolster your self-esteem – Learn to accept compliments and stop being your own worst critic. Strive to express one positive thought about yourself each day.

Act on your determination – Invest the time in keeping a food and activity diary. This self-monitoring requires a time commitment and proves your determination.

Adapt to personal relationships – Don't fall prey to the sabotage of friends and family. Explain to others how they can support your efforts and perhaps learn valuable new habits for themselves.

Get a grip on stress – Overeating is only a temporary solution to conquering boredom, depression or anger. By replacing stress and thus the craving to eat with physical exertion and time management, it can be easier to combat.

Make exercise a habit – Learn to integrate exercise into your life without overburdening yourself by finding activities you truly enjoy which fit into your lifestyle. Try learning a new sport that requires a partner or play with your kids.

Take control of your meals – When eating out, ask how dishes are prepared and request simple changes to accommodate your needs. When traveling, bring along your own healthy snacks or request a special meal.

Forgive setbacks and move on – When lapses happen, try to discover the root of the problem and get back on plan as soon as possible. Remember, this is only a temporary setback, not failure.

Don't postpone feeling successful – Weight loss is well within your reach. An initial loss of just 10 percent of your current body weight provides significant psychological and health benefits, like dropping a dress size or lowering blood cholesterol.

"Making the Difference with the Duchess" is a forty-five minute audio cassette that retails for $5.95 and is available at all Weight Watchers Centers. For a listing of local locations or for more information about Weight Watchers, call 800-651-6000 or visit www.weightwatchers.com.

A new audio tape by Sarah, Duchess of York, may give many people the encouragement they need to lose weight.

that help manage the alternating constipation and diarrhea that accompany IBS.

The American Dietetic Association recommends an intake of 25 to 30 grams of fiber daily, but most Americans consume only 10 to 15 grams of fiber every day. Therefore, physicians often recommend Konsyl as an exceptionally convenient and safe dietary fiber supplement for their patients with IBS. Because Konsyl contains 100 percent psyllium, it requires fewer doses per day and is free of chemical stimulants, sugar or artificial sweeteners. It is even safe for pregnant women, nursing mothers, diabetics and those on gluten-free diets.

"My patients with IBS especially like the convenience of Konsyl and its high dietary fiber content per teaspoon," said Dr. Michael Safdi, a gastroenterologist in Cincinnati, Ohio.

nati, Ohio.

The all-natural supplement contains 6 grams of psyllium per teaspoon dose, almost twice the amount of dietary fiber found in other supplements that supply only 3.4 grams or less per teaspoon dose. In addition, new Konsyl Easy Mix features a smooth texture that is easily combined with a variety of juices or other beverages.

Recommended by medical professionals for more than thirty-five years, Konsyl fiber supplements are available over the counter in pharmacies and discount stores throughout the United States.

For a free educational booklet on IBS, write to Konsyl Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 4200 South Hulén Street, Fort Worth, Texas 76109; or visit the company's Web site at www.konsyl.com.

POLICE BLOTTER

Sherlock Holmes' Dr. Watson might have titled this "The Case of 'Who's Got Change?' As in change for phony bills. It seems that several counterfeit greenbacks have surfaced in these parts. East Hampton Town Police said two fake twenties were passed at a gas station on Three Mile Harbor Road and the manager there told two of his employees to use the bogus bills somewhere instead of taking the $40 loss and reporting the matter to the police.

Ginerva Lang came in for a fillup and was given one of the twenties in her change. She tried to use it at the Amagansett General Store but the bill was spotted. She called police, told them she had just come from a certain gas station, and the authorities found the other counterfeit bill in the register there.

The manager of the station turned himself in and was released on his own recognizance.

But just two days later two unidentified men passed a fake Ben Franklin at, yes, the very same gas station. They wanted change of $100 in order to use a pay phone. But they were seen not using the phone, but departing.

The police feel both incidents are related. It might be worthwhile for locals to peruse their bills in the immediate future.

An Amagansett man reported an intruder in his Sandpiper Lane residence while he was away. Continuing last week's trend of tool theft, $1,500 worth of tools were removed. The criminal craftsman was apparently cold, as a $350 leather bomber jacket was also taken. Before the intruder left, he creatively enjoyed some marijuana in the bathroom, as a soda can made into a bong was found there.

Williams Funeral Home in East Hampton reported the theft of a bird house. Also taken were a bicycle and a camera valued at $600. The bird loving burglar got in easy as there was no sign of forced entry.

A Springs woman left her bicycle out on her lawn while she cleaned out her shed. When she wasn't looking, the Ross mountain bike, valued at $250, grew legs and disappeared.

A Ronkonkoma woman was charged with disorderly conduct on March 5 at 4 a.m. Laura Suppa, 21, was observed by police allegedly urinating in the 7-Eleven parking lot in Southampton. Shortly after, V.M. Oliveira, 19, of Selden was charged with the same violation after allegedly committing the same act in the same parking lot.

Volkswagens used to float. They don't anymore. A woman from East Hampton found out the hard way when she drove her 1986 VW into the Peconic Bay. She was travelling on North Sea Road in Southampton. When she reached the end, the road turned to beach and the beach turned to water. She swam back to shore in the 42-degree water and sought help at a nearby residence.

While she was brought to Southampton Hospital to be treated for exposure, passers by saw the car in twelve feet of water and called the police. Southampton Town Police, Southampton Town Bay Constables, U.S. Coast Guard, the North Sea Fire Department and Southampton Volunteer Ambulance all responded. Divers went in to look for occupants which they did not find.

When the Good Samaritan returned, she told authorities that she had taken the driver to the hospital. Police are still investigating how the VW became aquatic.

Dan's LETTERS

HAPPY ABOUT "MOM'S AIRPORT"

Dear Dan,

With January wind-chills at -20 degrees, friends and family managed to find their way to warm Belle's Cafe at Suffolk County Gabbers Airport in Westhampton Beach to attend my retirement party and to celebrate my three decade love affair as the airport secretary.

I loved my job!

The music, the proclamations the gold watch, the balloons, the flowers, the gift certificate, the beautifully embroidered pillow, the plaque on permanent display at the terminal, all these presents and the presence of all my good friends and family...well, I am deeply, deeply grateful.

Special thanks to both Charlie Bertha, the Suffolk County Commissioner of Public Works and George Guldi, our County Legislator, for braving the frigid weather and for the stunning announcement that the main thoroughfare linking the Administration Building with the terminal and control tower - be renamed "Sheldon Way." I was in tears with astonishment. Words just could not do justice to my feelings. So, some folks asked me to sing a song. I sang Irving Berlin's sentimental "Always." The spontaneity that moments like this create are gifts to treasure. Always.

I thank my colleagues, especially airport manager Pauline Mize whose brainstorm it was to honor me in such a thoughtful warm, my talented replacement Joann Bonsignore whom I had the pleasure of working with during the transition stage, and the two guys who day-in and day-out do the hands-on physical "magic" that make the hundreds of acres at Gabreski Airport run smoothly - Drex Collins and Sal Lettieri.

I will miss you all, but it's nice to know the plaque at the terminal reads "Mom's Airport" (an affection my husband and six children dubbed the airport when I started work there so long ago.) Mom's Airport...that sure sounds friendly!

You can't miss the terminal...it's on "Sheldon's Way!"

A CRY IN THE DARK IN NORTH HAVEN

Dear Dan,

The Van der Klerk idea regarding the release of male lions into the woods of North Haven to solve the problem of the deer population seemed to be a good one at the time, but he forgot one thing, the male lion is lazy, very lazy by nature. In his wild habitat he spends most of his time sleeping, eating, grooming himself and yes, taking care of the birds and the bees. One thing he doesn't do is hunt. After all, he is "King" of the jungle. Hunting is left to the females and female lions were not released in North Haven for the reasons we all know.

Now the starving males are wandering into people's backyards and going through the garbage in search of food. Some of the residents feeling sorry for them are leaving food in front of their houses. A pet store in Southampton has even gone as far as stocking antelope and zebra meat next to the more common dog and cat food.

A better way to solve the problem in North Haven would have been to release Dingoes instead of Lions. Dingoes are not lazy at all and don't mind hunting. But once again, let's not forget what happened in Australia where they were introduced to get rid of too many rabbits. The Dingoes feed themselves well, in fact very well and since they didn't have any natural predators in Australia, have become pests themselves.

It seems to me that trying to solve the deer population in North Haven is a lost cause at this time if we concentrate on the deer, shouldn't we instead concentrate on getting rid of the people.

Why not relocate some residents of North Haven elsewhere and give the land and the woods back to the deer. With plenty of space and food they wouldn't have any reason to go into people's back yards and fed on their hostas, azaleas or rhododendrons. (Yes, they do eat rhododendrons when they are hungry.)

HOMEOWNERS WITH MONEY WORRIES MAY QUALIFY FOR LOW INTEREST LOANS

Loans: Direct lender loosens its requirements for homeowners who need money now.

Have you been turned down for a loan? Do you need more than $10,000 for any reason? Are you paying more than 10% interest on any other loans or credit cards?

If you are a homeowner and answered yes to any of these questions, they can tell you over the phone and without obligation if you qualify.

High credit card debt? Less than perfect credit? Self-employed? Late house payments? Financial problems? Medical bills? IRS liens? It doesn't matter!

If you are a homeowner with sufficient equity, there's an excellent chance you will qualify for a loan - usually within 24 hours.

You can find out over the phone - and free of charge if you qualify - Stone Castle Home Loans is licensed by the NY State Banking Department. Call 1-800-700-1242 ext 263.
